Crown Coach Corp School Buses

The Crown Coach Corporation is a defunct American bus manufacturer. Established in 1904, Crown was headquartered in Los Angeles, California until the mid-1980s, moving to Chino, California until its closure. Best known for its Supercoach range of yellow school buses and motorcoaches, Crown also was the manufacturer of custom-built vehicles derived from its buses, including the Firecoach line of fire apparatus. Crown Coach closed in March 1991 due to declining demand for school buses at the time.

Crown Coach Corporation - Wikipedia

Crown Coach buses were the predominant school bus supplier during that time. It wasn't until 1985, when our district recieved our first Bluebird All American, that I realized Crown's weren't the only bus around. In fact, I called our new buses 'white tops' since they arrived with painted white tops. Our Crowns were still yellow all around.

The Crown Supercoach is a bus that was constructed and marketed by Crown Coach Corporation from 1948 to 1991. While most examples were sold as yellow school buses, the Supercoach formed the basis for motorcoaches and other specialty vehicles using the same body and chassis. While technically available outside of the West Coast, nearly all Crown school buses were sold in California, Washington State, and Oregon. From 1948 to 1984, the Supercoach was constructed at the Crown Coach facilities in Lo

Crown Supercoach - Wikipedia

Crown's Supercoach school buses were known for strength and durability, built of 90,000 psi steel, with an expected service life of 20 years. This became a factor contributing to Crown's shutdown in 1991, because competitors produced less expensive buses made of 45,000 psi steel.
