For me it's got to be learning some basic command line tools, and how to link them. One commonly used operational tool on my team is a simple chain of command line commands (curl, into jq, back into curl), and it has saved every member of my team countless hours of manually clicking buttons in a third-party web-ui. I threw it together in 5 minutes.

The Ship of Theseus, Threshold Emptiness Insight and Losing the Ability to Buy into Nouns. At a certain point, once enough insight into emptiness was established, the ability to seriously believe in separate entities became near impossible. I remember with my beginner's mind, closed individualism was the default position.
