Jewish music. This is by far the one I use most -- about as much as all of the others put together. It's a great mix of traditional settings of prayers, Jewish folk songs, Israeli classics, classics of the Reform folk-song style (Debbie Friedman, Jeff Klepper, et. al.). If you want to have one Jewish song

The last line, “a raging flame,” is likely a superlative, but some suppose that it uses the name of God ('esh shalhebetya) and thus read it as “the flame of Yah.” This lack of any reference to the divine may have prompted discussion about the Song’s inclusion in the canon. In the Jewish tradition, the rabbis silenced such a discussion by affirming that “Song of Songs is holy because ...

Jewish and Christian Interpretation of the Song of Songs

Jewish music, the music of Jews, is quite diverse and dates back thousands of years. Sometimes it is religious in nature, other times it is not. The rhythm and sound of the music varies greatly depending on the origins of the Jewish composers. This section is about the sacred and religious music of Judaism from Biblical to Modern times.
