Larkin The Whitsun Weddings And

The Whitsun Weddings. By Philip Larkin. That Whitsun, I was late getting away: Not till about. One-twenty on the sunlit Saturday. Did my three-quarters-empty train pull out, All windows down, all cushions hot, all sense. Of being in a hurry gone. We ran.

The Whitsun Weddings by Philip Larkin | Poetry Foundation

Philip Larkin was what was known as a poet of the Movement. His poetry and poems, such as The Whitsun Weddings, was written in such a way that it reflected the lack of importance of Britain in a post-war world, and also echoed the changes that Britain was going through. The shift from a mostly-rural to a mostly-urban economy was also something that Larkin touched upon, as well as the idea of Britain being a little bit outdated in terms of technology and innovation.

Analysis of The Whitsun Weddings by Philip Larkin

In its harmony of change and loss played against the melody of the poem's wedding narrative, "The Whitsun Weddings" (1958) shows this contradiction to great effect. The poem may be Larkin's best. Whitsun, or Whit Sunday, is the seventh Sunday after Easter (Pentecost), deep into spring, when people often marry.
