In her latest book Precarious Life: The Powers of Mourning and Violence, Judith Butler strongly upholds the tradition of dissenting voices in America, even in the midst of climate of fear and censorship that comes close at times to McCarthyism (as implied in Bush's call that "Either you are with us or you're with the terrorists"). T

Review of Precarious Life: The Powers of Mourning

It documents the return of the extra juridical power of sovereignty (as conceived by Foucault) and its impact on the precarization of life (naked life). As a response to this attack on life, Butler advocates an ethical responsibility focused on mutual-recognition and visibility of the excluded, even if the only way to do it is to mourn them.
